When Joy Queen hears that an old friend of her father's is coming to visit, she doesn't think much of it. Well, other than the fact that she's going to have to deal with a stranger in the house for Labor Day weekend. What she didn't expect was James Davenport—a forty-five-year-old man-child from New York who just won't leave her alone. Oh, and did she mention that he's a billionaire? Cause he sure didn't. As she learns to deal with James (and his romantic advances), Joy might just find that he's not the worst person to have around.
